

07 • Compliance

MMFX operates in a regulated space — retail forex and CFD education, and introducing-broker referral — and advertises on platforms that treat financial services as a restricted category. In a multi-tenant arrangement these risks multiply: thirty IBs under one MIB can become thirty independent compliance problems unless one rule set is enforced across all of them.

This document sets out that rule set and where liability sits.

1 • Where liability sits

Anything an IB publishes on their desk renders on a platform MMFX operates, on a domain MMFX provisions, to traders funnelled into a Dupoin account under the MMFX MIB. A careless claim by one IB is not contained to that IB.

The position MMFX proposes:

Party	Responsible for
The IB	Compliance within their own jurisdiction; the accuracy and legality of content they upload; their own marketing claims
MMFX	The platform, the rule set, review before publication, enforcement and takedown; all creative MMFX itself produces
Dupoin	Broker-side regulatory requirements; confirming which markets are eligible

Enforcement mechanism. A content policy annexed to every IB agreement, a review step before anything an IB uploads goes live, and a takedown right MMFX can exercise unilaterally. At pilot scale review is manual and entirely feasible. Before scaling beyond roughly ten tenants it must become a defined workflow — that is a condition of Phase 3, not an afterthought.

2 • Platform advertising risk

Forex and CFD-adjacent advertising sits under restricted-category financial services policy on the major ad platforms. Some markets require prior written permission or advertiser authorisation; some restrict the category outright.

Before any campaign is built for any tenant:

1. Confirm the ad account is in good standing and eligible for financial education and trading products in each target market
2. Confirm whether the market requires advertiser verification
3. Confirm no market-specific restriction rules the geo out
4. Confirm the positioning holds — this is education and tools, never advice, and the creative must make that obvious

Policy changes frequently and must be verified against current published policy rather than this document.

Multi-tenant note. One ad account serving multiple IBs means one restriction takes every tenant down with it. This is why the ad-account and Business Manager structure is a Phase 3 prerequisite before Tier 3 scales, and not something to improvise.

3 • Never say, imply or show

Applies to MMFX and to every IB on the platform, without exception.

Earnings and results — the hardest rule

- Any profit, income or return: guaranteed, typical, projected or implied
- "Make $X a day/week/month", "replace your salary", "passive income"
- Profit screenshots — account balances, P&L, broker statements, win streaks
- Win rates or accuracy claims
- Testimonials referencing money made
- "Risk-free", "guaranteed", "can't lose"
- Backtest or historical performance figures

Advice and outcome

- Anything reading as financial advice or a personal recommendation
- "We'll make you profitable", "turn your account around"
- Claiming any tool predicts the market
- Suggesting trading is easy, quick or low-risk

Pressure and imagery

- Urgency pushing someone to deposit
 - Wealth-flex imagery — cars, watches, cash, jets
 - Framing a broker deposit as a payment to the IB or to MMFX. It is the trader's own capital in their own account, and it must always be described that way
 - Targeting, or implying targeting of, vulnerable or financially distressed people

4 • Safe and true

- The platform provides education, analysis and tools — not advice
 - The trial is genuinely free, no card required
 - The AI Trading Assistant is read-only: it cannot trade, cannot withdraw, and the account password is never stored. Lead with this
 - Specific factual product claims are fine: ten indicators, nineteen instruments, published every session
 - Trading carries risk of loss; include risk messaging where required
 - Outcomes depend entirely on the trader's own decisions
 - Past performance never indicates future results

5 • The rewrite pattern

Unsafe	Safe
"Stop losing money"	"See where your money is leaking"
"Make consistent profits"	"Build a consistent process"
"Our signals are 80% accurate"	"Trade ideas from the desk, with the reasoning"
"This indicator predicts reversals"	"This indicator highlights potential reversal zones"
"Turn your trading around"	"See what your account is actually doing"
"Trade like a pro and earn like one"	"Learn the system a professional actually uses"
"Join 10,000 profitable traders"	"Join traders learning the system"

The pattern: describe what the product does, never what the trader will earn.

6 • Product-specific cautions

Product	Watch for
Signals (IB-uploaded)	The most sensitive surface on the platform. Never quote accuracy, win rate, pips or profit. Signals are trade ideas to evaluate, never advice and never an income source
Strategies	Backtestable, but backtest returns are never published and future performance is never implied
Indicators	Analysis tools that highlight conditions. They do not predict
AI Trading Assistant	Lead with read-only, cannot trade, password never stored. It analyses; it does not advise or execute
Courses	Teach a method. They do not promise an outcome
The broker offer	The deposit is the trader's own capital in their own name. Never "pay us". Disclose the introducing-broker relationship where required

7 • Member content

Any testimonial, review, screenshot or named trader requires written consent. No trader's results may be presented as typical or expected. No aggregate statistics — member counts, success rates — without confirmation that the figure is both accurate and safe to publish.

8 • Sign-off

Everything an IB uploads is reviewed before it publishes. The fastest path through review:

1. Check it against §3
2. Run it through the §5 rewrite pattern
3. Ask: does this promise an outcome, or describe a product? Only the second passes
